Website Description

For this CA, I decided that I was going to design a website for a small clothing store located in Dublin, Ireland. The clothing store is to be called 'JKG Clothing Outlet'. The website will have a list of products, including pictures, of which will be available for purchase in the shop. I plan to stock and display a wide range of products from world renowned clothing brands, Nike, Adidas and Puma. Every product will have a picture, a short description and a rating out of 5 stars. A bootstrap "Shop" template will be used as a base for the site and we will be expanding and adding to this template to complete the site. Once the website is completed regularly using only HTML and CSS, I will import it into a virtual machine. Inside this virtual machine, the website will be turned into a play-frame java application. This play-frame java application will add the functionality for a database to be created along with a login feature. This database will contain a full listing off all the products that will be on display in the "shop" section of the website. The login feature will be used to give admin privileges to the website. When logged in, an admin will have the ability to add a product, update a product or delete a product from the database.

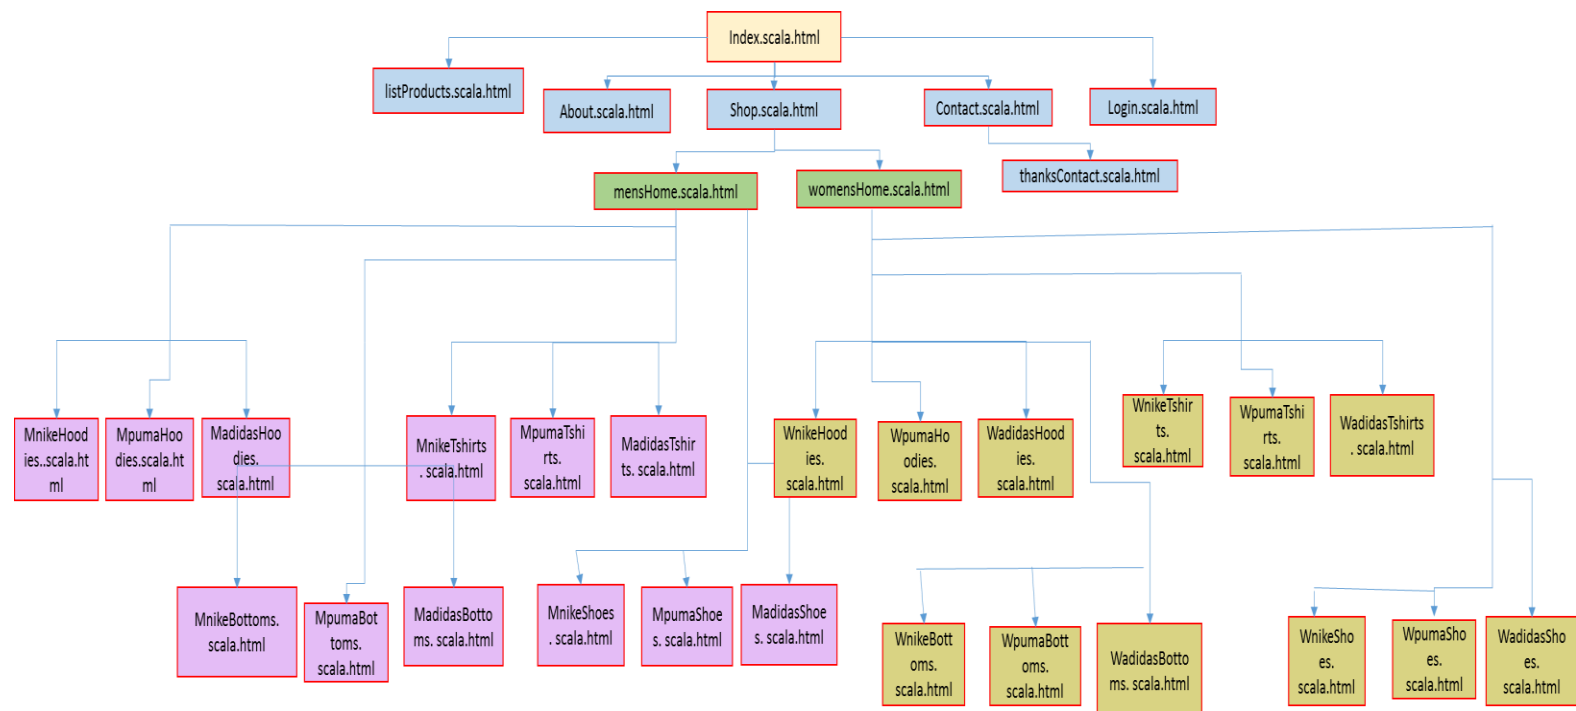

Original Site Structure and Navigation

The first, original site will be made up of 33 HTML pages and 4 CSS pages. The main pages will be 'Index.html', 'About.html', 'Contact.html' and 'Shop.html'. The Index page will have a short welcome message letting customers know what we are selling. The About page will contain location information about the store. The Contact page will have a form in which customers will be able to fill in to send a message to us. These 3 pages will have the same structure, which is a navigation bar, the content and the footer. However, the Shop page, will branch off into multiple different pages. The Shop page and all pages it links to relating to the products will have a side bar along with the main navigation bar, footer and content. The Shop page will link to Men's homepage, Women's homepage and a full product catalogue which will be in the form of a database table. Both the Men's homepage and Women's homepage will branch off into page for hoodies, t-shirts, bottoms and footwear for each of the 3 brands we will stock, i.e. Nike, Adidas and Puma.

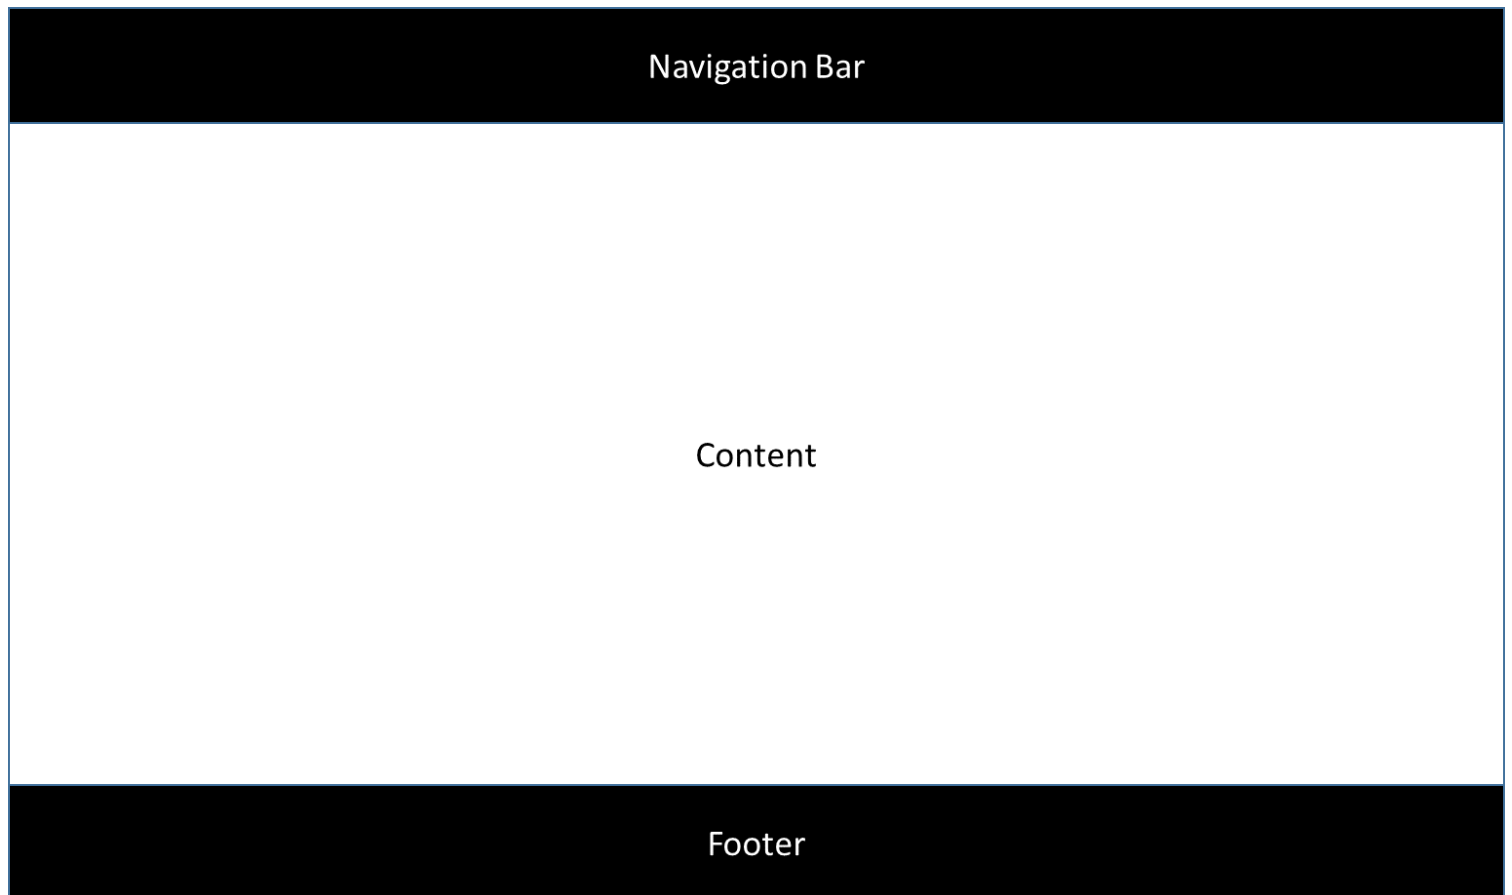

Finished Play Framework Application Structure and Navigation

The finished play framework application structure will be slightly different to the original site because of the additional features that a play-frame application brings. It will be compiled of 40 scala pages. These extra pages will include “main.scala.html”, “login.scala.html”, “updateProduct.scala.html”, “addProduct.scala.html” and more. The new frame application will consist of 4 Controller pages and 4 Model pages. All of the controllers and models will help create the fully functional finished play-frame application.

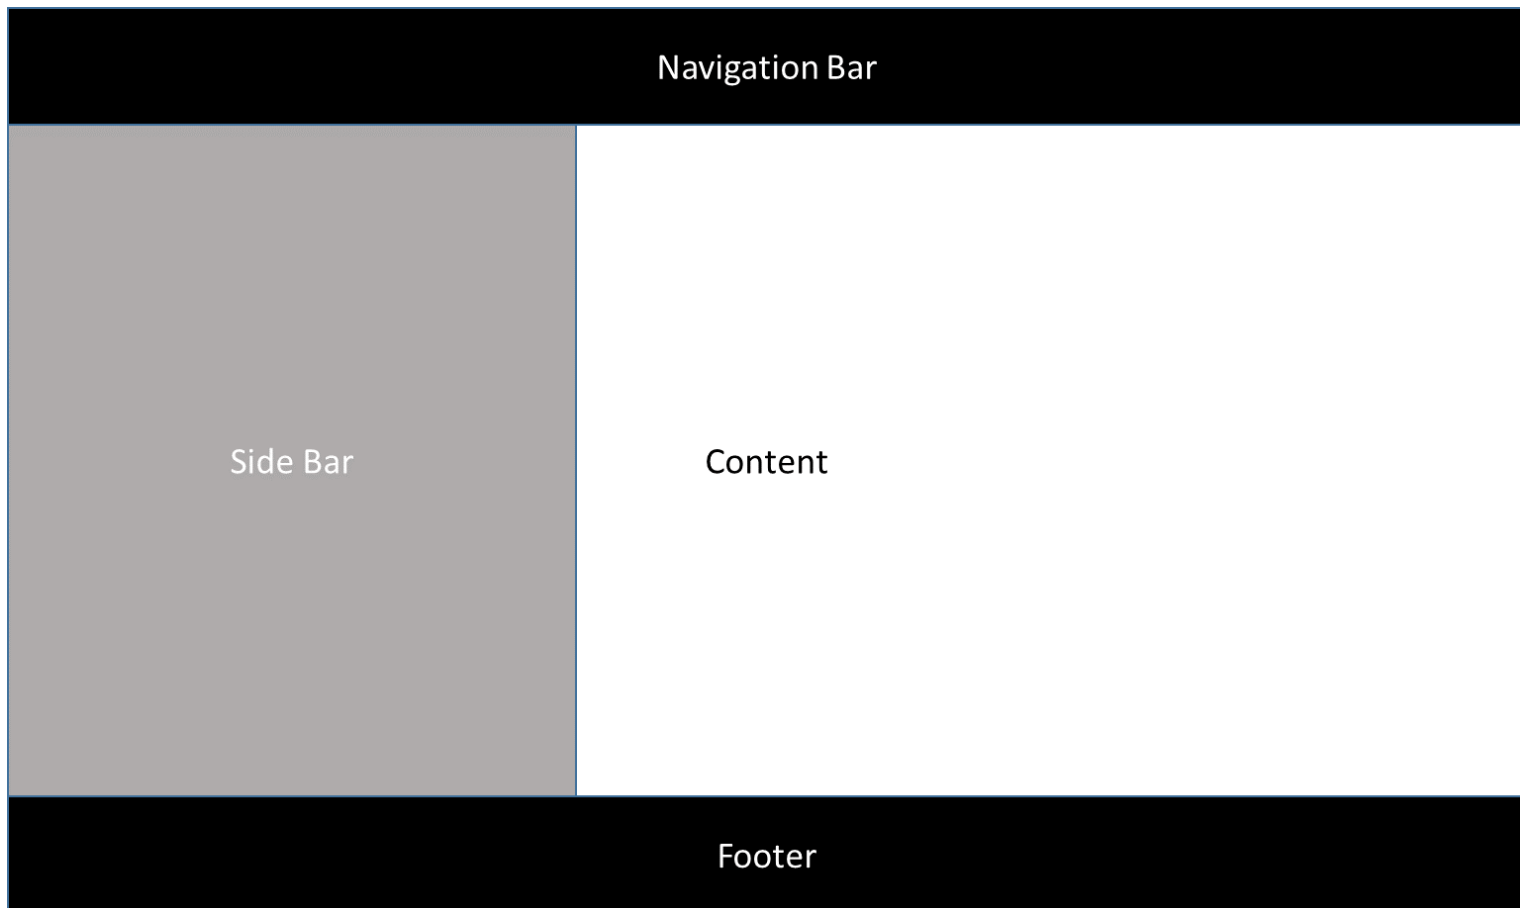

Page Layout

Index.scala.html, About.scala.html, Contact.scala.html, login.scala.html, listProducts.scala.html.

These pages are the main pages of the website excluding the shop.scala.html page. Therefore, they will all have the layout. Each of these pages listed above will have the same navigation bar on top, same footer on bottom and their own unique content in between, as defined by the main.scala.html.

Shop.scala.html and all other shop related pages.

The shop.scala.html page, along with all other shop related pages will look slightly different. It will follow the same guidelines as the other main pages with the navigation bar, footer and unique content. However in the unique content for the shop, and each shop related page, there will be a new side navigation bar which will contain links to the scala pages within the shop section of the website.

Fonts

The website is aimed at people of all ages and because of this I want all of our users to be able to read the text on the website. In order to achieve this, a straight forward font which is easy to read was used. I also managed to keep the font size similar throughout the pages for as much text as possible. Large bootstrap buttons were used on the about, index and contact pages. Inside the Products side of the site, main links such as links to “men’s home” and “women’s home” are bold to differentiate them from the rest of the links. Each set of links is separated and has a bold heading, e.g “Nike” will be in bold, which will be followed by links to the Nike related pages.
